The JCEEF is a nonprofit organization formed to raise funds in support of Johnson County K-State Research and Extension so it may serve the community with low cost or free programming.

Johnson County K-State Research and Extension provides research-based, unbiased information through its non-credited programs to the citizens of Johnson County, Kansas.

Kansas State University is committed to making its services, activities and programs accessible to all participants. If you have special requirements due to a physical, vision, or hearing disability, contact Johnson County K-State Research and Extension, 913-715-7000.
Through your membership support and kind contributions, we have issued grants since 1997 of over $100,000 to Extension programs. These programs provide research-based, unbiased information to our Johnson County community.

YOU make the difference!

Your contributions benefit the Johnson County community by helping us extend information into the hands of our residents and address their local needs through K-State Research and Extension’s Five Grand Challenges.

Grand Challenges

Global Food Systems
Food nutrition, food safety and urban agriculture education.

Water & Natural Resources
Water quality education and management to prevent erosion and decrease pollutants in storm runoff by educating residents on ways to reduce harmful contaminants.

Health
Programs that help residents adopt behaviors that improve their health, financial stability and quality of life.

Community Vitality
Natural resources management, lawn and garden, emergency management, Medicare counseling, soil testing, plus 1,018 volunteers strengthen the county.

Developing Tomorrow’s Leaders
4-H Youth Development programming teaches youth to learn-by-doing so they become productive problem solvers prepared for the global marketplace. The board leadership program enhances the skills of adult community leaders.
